The Power of Questions

Privacy Policy

This policy covers how Remedy101 Coaching treats personal and confidential information that we may collect or receive in connection with our coaching services or with regard to our Web site www.Remedy101.com (the "Site"). Personal information is information about you that is personally identifiable like your name, address, e-mail address, or phone number, and that is not otherwise publicly available. Confidential and/or sensitive Information includes, but is not limited to any individual or member non-public information that is disclosed to Remedy101 Coaching (or affiliates) in connection with Remedy101 Coaching's operations.

Confidentiality and Security

Neither personal nor confidential information may be re-disclosed or used for the benefit of any person, firm, corporation or other business organization without the consent of the owner of the information. We apply this standard (the "Confidentiality Pledge") to our staff, affiliates, and members.

Limited Access

We limit access to personal information about you to staff and affiliates who we believe reasonably need that information to provide services to you. We take all reasonable precautions to keep your personal information secure and we have put in place physical, electronic, and procedural safeguards that comply with federal regulations to protect personal information about you.

Information Collection and Use

Remedy101 Coaching collects personal information when you register with our Site. When you register with our Site we may ask for information such as your name, e-mail address, birth date, gender, zip code, occupation, industry, and personal interests. Once you register with a Site and sign in to the Site, you are not anonymous to us. Remedy101 Coaching automatically receives and records information on our server logs from your browser, including your IP address, cookie information, and the page you request.

Information Sharing and Disclosure

Remedy101 Coaching does not rent, sell, or share personal information about you with other people or non-affiliated companies except when we have your permission, or under the following circumstances:

1. When we respond to subpoenas, court orders, or legal process, or to establish or exercise our legal rights or defend against legal claims; or
2. When we believe it is necessary to share information in order to investigate, prevent, or take action regarding illegal activities, suspected fraud, situations involving potential threats to the physical safety of any person, violations of our Terms of Use (including but not limited to the Confidentiality Pledge) or as otherwise required by law.

Cookies & Pixel Tags

We collect visitor information by using cookies and pixel tags. Cookies are files or pieces of information that may be stored in your computer's hard drive when you visit a Web site. This file or piece of information allows a user to move quickly and easily around our Site and is used to identify returning users. We also use a cookie to track a user's sessions. We use this information to find out what site features are most popular so we can develop our Site and content in light of our analysis of people's usage. The use of cookies is an industry standard and done on most Web sites. We do not, however, use cookies to retrieve involuntary information about your computer.

Accordingly, if you would prefer, you can set up your browser to refuse cookies or to alert you to their presence and thereby allow you to remove them from your computer. If you reject cookies, you may have difficulty navigating parts of our website, and may need to enter identifying information each time you access a password protected page.

A pixel tag, also known as a clear GIF or web beacon, is an invisible tag or tiny graphic image placed on certain pages of our website or in emails but not on your computer. When you access these pages, pixel tags generate a generic notice of that visit. They usually work in conjunction with cookies, registering when a particular computer visits a particular page. If you turn off cookies the pixel tag will simply detect an anonymous website visit. Pixel tags help us analyze our visitors' online behavior and measure the effectiveness of our websites and our advertising. We work with service providers that help us track, collect, and analyze this information.

Pixel tags on our sites may be used to collect information about your visit, including the pages you view, the features you use, the links you click, and other actions you take in connection with the Site. This information may include your computer's Internet protocol (IP) address, your browser type, your operating system, date and time information, and other technical information about your computer. We may also track certain information about the identity of the website you visited immediately before coming to our site. We do not otherwise track any information about your use of other websites.

Pixel tags and cookies in our emails may be used to track your interactions with those messages, such as when you receive, open, or click a link in an email message from us.

We may combine the information we collect through cookies and pixel tags with other information we have collected from you. This information may be used to improve our websites, to personalize your online experience, to tailor our communications with you, to determine the effectiveness of our advertising, and for other internal business purposes.

Links to Other Web Sites

Our Site contains links to other third party Web sites; however, we are not responsible for the privacy practices or the content of such Web sites and do not make any representation as to the existence, sufficiency, accuracy or completeness of their Web sites or privacy policies.

Changes to This Privacy Policy

Due to changes in legislation and best practice or enhancements to functionality and content on our Site, Remedy101 Coaching may update this privacy policy. We will notify you about significant changes in the way we treat personal information by sending a notice to the primary e-mail address or by placing a prominent notice on the Site, and accordingly you should check here from time to time.
